Dear FCC:

I use my phone to keep in contact with family members. My grandmother is a Veteran and I have to take her to a Veteran's Hosptial several times a month, I use my phone to relay what's happening to her so my family will know what's going on. Don't punish us for the use of our cell phones. Just because you may have lots of money doesn't mean that everyone else does. I can bearly afford my service now. If you raise the cost I guarantee that there will be a lot of people deactivating their service and then you wouldn't have to worry about your raise. There would be no use for it. Because no one would use their cell phones. Now how would you fell about that.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter. Please provide a written response indicating the status/resolution of this matter.

Very truly yours,

Micheal Heird
